

HIGHER EDUCATION TEAM

OVERVIEW

BCLP offers a fully-integrated global team possessing valuable higher education experience. We understand that now, more than ever, universities and colleges find themselves under strenuous attack in the courts and from regulatory agencies across the broad spectrum of legal domains in which they operate.

The multiple missions served – providing education, advancing knowledge through cutting-edge research, and providing the most advanced patient care available – contribute to the sometimes-staggering legal complexity confronting higher education institutions.

Our higher education attorneys fully appreciate how the diverse and sometimes competing constituencies within institutions of higher education occasionally complicate management's efforts to develop and execute legal strategies. We are skilled at assisting those efforts without making the complex dynamics of university governance and management even more challenging. We've "been there," and we understand the unique discomfort that can attend higher education's engagement with legal issues and processes, particularly in the internal investigations/compliance, technology transfer, and collegiate sports arenas.

EXPERIENCE

We understand how universities, colleges and academic medical centers operate in a highly-regulated, extraordinarily litigious environment, which makes them among the most legally complex and challenged institutions in the world.

We regularly represent colleges and universities in a full spectrum of areas that reflect the diversity of our clients and their legal needs, including athletics, construction, employment relations, estates and trusts, finance and commercial transactions, general business and operational matters, information technology, intellectual property, labor and labor relations, real property, tax, and utilities and energy advice, to name a few. Some of our experience includes:

- Represented New York University in obtaining land use approvals for (and successfully defending litigation challenging) the NYU Core project, which includes the construction of new university buildings comprising approximately 2 million square feet of classroom, dormitory, faculty housing and other space on its Washington Square Campus in Manhattan.
- Conducted internal investigations for a number of universities, including one major sports powerhouse, concerning athletic and sports medicine department compliance with regulations and best practices on sports-related concussion policies, educational programs, clinical management and return to play/learn decision-making and documentation.
- Conducted a year-long independent investigation for the Board of Trustees of one of the nation's largest state universities concerning the university's improper use of restricted state funds for capital infrastructure projects. The investigation involved more than 50 witness interviews and the review of thousands of documents to uncover that institution had misused nearly $100 million in state funds on over a dozen capital projects at the university over a ten-year period. The BCLP team issued a written report containing its factual findings and recommendations, which the Board of Trustees made public.

- A cross-practice team from BCLP advised the University of Cambridge on its 150 hectare mixed-use scheme at the North West Cambridge Development, a project part of an estimated billion dollar investment into the city. The completed development, potentially a 15-year project, will include 3,000 new homes, 2,000 student residences, a hotel, senior living facilities, supermarket and supporting retail and community facilities. We advised the University from the very inception of the development on all legal aspects including planning, procurement, construction (non-contentious and contentious), energy, real estate disputes and charities law.
- Represented a major national research university in a year-long, distance learning project structuring, reworking and replacing online program management (OPM) vendor arrangements to negotiate reasonable revenue shares, appropriate exit mechanisms, fair allocations of compliance obligations and risk management responsibilities.
- On behalf of a public university, negotiated over $5 billion of private fund investments, including terms of subscription agreements and side letter agreements, with sponsors of private equity, private real estate and venture capital funds; negotiated Investment Management Agreements with separate account managers and Wall Street firms, including Goldman Sachs and J.P. Morgan, for direct investments including stocks, bonds, options, futures and private equity opportunities, and negotiated legal agreements related to investments in state-specific tax credits.
- Serve as outside general counsel to a 15,000-student university with multiple international locations, providing counsel and litigation services on a wide range of governance, business, employment and cross-border matters.
- Assisted dozens of colleges and universities with all aspects of employee benefits, including the design, structure and documentation of 403(b) plans, 457 plans, tuition remission programs, health plans and other welfare benefit arrangements.
- Represented a number of universities with respect to data incident response, data security and privacy matters. This work often includes identifying the diverse laws that impact institutions and help rank which raise the most risk and concern based upon an institution's particular functions and footprint.
- Assisted colleges and universities navigate through uncertainty about their obligations with respect to firearms on campus. BCLP has represented a flagship state university in extensive litigation over the last four years relating to the University's prohibition of firearms on campus. The University prevailed at the trial court level and the case is now on appeal.

- Represented the Dormitory Authority of the State of New York in litigation challenging its compliance with the State Environmental Quality Review Act in connection with the condemnation of property for the expansion of John Jay College of Criminal Justice.
- Advised a number of universities on UPMIFA implications of making “internal loans” of endowed funds to cover operating budget deficits.
- Advised a non-profit extension services organization in support of education outreach for a nationwide, non-credit educational network in the review of subrecipient agreements with a public U.S. research university.
- Advised a non-profit extension services organization in support of education outreach for a nationwide, non-credit educational network in the review of subrecipient agreements with a public U.S. research university.

Department of Education's New Proposed Rule for Transgender Participation in Athletics

The participation of transgender athletes in youth, interscholastic, and elite sport has long been a highly charged political issue domestically and internationally, with a vast range of different approaches to regulating participation. Last week's combination of Supreme Court orders, state legislation, and a proposed rulemaking from the Department of Education's Office of Civil Rights ("OCR") confirm that this must remain a focal point for educational institutions intending to continue offering athletics participation opportunities.

Supreme Court Issues Decision in Closely Watched Student Social Media Case

On June 23, 2021, the Supreme Court issued its decision in the closely-watched case of Mahanoy Area School District v. B.L. The decision, which upheld the Third Circuit's ruling for a high school cheerleader suspended from her cheerleading squad for a profanity-filled social media post, tackles the thorny question of whether, and under what circumstances, public schools may punish students for their off-campus social media use, and conversely, the circumstances under which such speech is protected by the First Amendment.

Antitrust Guidance by the Justice Department for Higher Education Institutions non-Standard Essential Patents Pool Reveals A Path Toward Licensing and Innovation

The increasing intersection of antitrust and intellectual property laws has led to a number of complex legal issues for which clients often seek guidance from the Antitrust Division of the Department of Justice (“DOJ”). Earlier this year, a collaboration of fifteen private and public universities sought specific guidance from the DOJ with regard to a non-Standard Essential Patents (“SEPs”) patent pool. In its response, the DOJ found that the design, contractual structure, and antitrust safeguards employed in the collaboration minimized legal risk while promoting procompetitive licensing, increased output, and innovation. Higher education clients with robust physical sciences and engineering programs may find this guidance helpful when exploring their own non-SEP patent pool collaboration opportunities.
